1.0 Introduction

Rice County is located in a transitional area between south-central and southeastern Minnesota, approximately 50 miles south of Minneapolis – St. Paul metropolitan area. The location has contributed to diverse land uses and development patterns. The County is predominately rural in nature with a total land area of roughly 496 square miles or 329,914 acres. Much of that land is used for the production of agricultural crops, in particular corn and soybeans, as well as livestock operations. The County’s cities are home to industry and education. Faribault has been known for woolen products, its garden and nursery industry and Minnesota State Academies. Northfield is known for its two liberal arts colleges, St. Olaf College and Carleton College, and the Defeat of Jesse James.

1.1 Purpose of the Plan

The Rice County Comprehensive Plan (The Plan) is prepared to assist in the decision making to guide the growth and development through 2040 and beyond. It also represents the goals and values of Rice County and provides the legal basis for updating Rice County ordinances. The first being the update of the Zoning Ordinance. It is understood that no plan can anticipate all the changes that will occur in that time frame so The Plan will need to be reviewed and amended from time to time. Action items will need review every one to two years to ensure implementation of the plan is on course.

1.2 Vision Statement

A vision statement provides strategic direction and describes what residents want the county to achieve in the future. A vision statement is a county’s road map, indicating both what the county wants to become and guiding transformational initiatives by setting a defined direction for the county’s growth. Vision statements undergo minimal revisions, unlike operational goals which may be updated from year-to-year. Vision statements also serve as the foundation for a broader strategic plan; motivate current and future residents by clearly categorizing the county’s goals; and focus efforts and facilitate the creation of core competencies by directing the county to only focus on strategic opportunities that advance the county’s vision.

“The board has the power and authority to prepare and adopt by ordinance, a comprehensive plan. A comprehensive plan or plans when adopted by ordinance must be the basis for official controls adopted under the provisions and sections 394.21 to 394.37”

-MN Statue (Section 394.23)
The 2040 Vision is a long-range, big picture portrayal of our desired future. The vision was developed during multiple work sessions with the Steering Committee. Below is our 2040 Vision:

“As Rice County grows and evolves into the future, we will support and encourage orderly growth and a diverse economy that will continue to create jobs and a high quality of life for our citizens. We will aspire to maintain the small town feel of our cities and preserve our agricultural heritage.”

1.3 Fundamental Inventory Guide – Background Information

The Plan has been prepared in two documents, The Plan and the Fundamental Inventory Guide (FIG). The purpose of having separate documents is to maintain a more user-friendly, compact and interactive document. The FIG is an integral component of the Comprehensive Planning process. It provides extensive background information and data used in the development of The Plan. The following components are contained in the FIG: Agriculture, Community Facilities & Public Services, Demographics, History, Land Use, Natural Resources and Transportation. It is designed so that information and statistics can be updated more frequently than The Plan. The FIG can be found in Appendix A of this Plan and Online access to the FIG is available on the county website at: http://www.co.rice.mn.us/482/Fundamental-Inventory-Guide-2040. The FIG will be updated as new and additional information becomes available.

1.4 Planning Process

The process to prepare the 2040 Plan involved an ongoing exchange of information, analysis, and response between public officials, citizens, and County staff. The Comprehensive Plan Steering Committee was comprised of Rice County Commissioners and members of the Planning Commission. Preparation of this Plan was organized into five phases:

Phase 1: Initiation – This phase involved the formation of the steering committee, initial meetings of the steering committee to provide background information on existing plan and development of a public participation plan.

Phase 2: Data Collection & Analysis – This phase involved collection and analysis of data related to Rice County. Staff analyzed growth trends, community changes, and future projections. The FIG was updated and reorganized into an interactive document. Another objective of this stage was to increase public awareness and education. Various methods were used at this stage to improve awareness, including press releases, Rice County website, newsletter and factsheets. Presentations were made to community and local groups. This step also involved the creation and distribution of a citizen survey.

Phase 3: Plan Preparation – This phase constituted actual plan formation. It involved regular work sessions with the Steering Committee and meetings with city and township officials.

Phase 4: Plan Review & Adoption – This phase involved steering committee, local units of government and citizen review of the newly drafted Rice County Comprehensive Plan.

Phase 5: Plan Implementation – Following the adoption of the Rice County Comprehensive Plan staff will initiate implementation of the plan, focusing attention on updating all relevant land ordinances to be consistent with the new comprehensive plan.

1.5 Community Engagement

County residents were able to participate throughout the planning process in a variety of ways, including community forums, citizen survey, Steering Committee work sessions and public informational meetings.
Community Forums
The 2040 Comprehensive Plan update began with public outreach that included three community forums. Community members gathered in three different locations and were informed about the comprehensive planning process and participated in a series of small group discussions. A total of 99 attendees responded to four questions asked at each meeting.

Top themes from the forums are summarized in “Comprehensive Plan Public Forum Summary” that is included in Appendix B.

Citizen Survey
A citizen survey was also prepared to aid in developing The Plan goals and objectives. The survey was a way of soliciting public input on specific topics and issues. A press release was issued and contained a link to the online survey. Letters to each of the 14 township officials were also distributed. In addition, a paper copy of the survey was included within the County’s Newsletter that is dispersed to all mailing addresses in Rice County. In total, 1,326 residents and landowners in Rice County responded to the survey. The results are summarized in the report titled “Rice County Comprehensive Plan Survey Summary” that is included in Appendix C.

Steering Committee Work Sessions
Steering Committee work sessions were regularly held prior to Planning Commission meetings and/or during County Board of Commissioners Committee of Whole work sessions. County staff facilitated discussions on Plan elements to the Steering Committee. Meetings were open to the public.

Meetings with Cities, Townships and Other Interested Community Groups.
Rice County staff conducted numerous meetings throughout all phases of the plan process with staff from the various cities in Rice County, various townships and other interested community groups. These meetings were valuable in getting input on various components of The Plan.
2.0 Economic Development

2.1 Introduction

Economic activity is the lifeblood of any community: providing jobs, creating wealth, and generating tax revenue. A diverse economic base lowers the risk of economic difficulty by distributing the effects of industry specific cycles across a broader range of industries.

It is Rice County’s objective to have a strong and resilient local economy with a diverse portfolio of economic activity: agricultural, commercial, industrial, professional services, and retail jobs. The local economy shall provide goods and services for local residents and business needs.

The underlying premise of this chapter is the concept that economic development, community development and workforce development are inter-dependent, mutually supportive and essential for sustainable economic vitality.

One of the key issues for the County is to retain and provide expansion opportunities for our existing businesses. Critical to facilitating successful business retention and growth is building strong relationships with the business community. The following focuses on economic indicators of the local business community and illustrates the importance of employment and tax base for our community.

Maintaining a healthy tax base is an important function of government and as the pie chart below shows, almost 60% of the County tax base comes from Residential and Seasonal Recreational Property (SRP). With the large difference in tax capacity percentages, steps must be taken to maintain a healthy balance to ensure an acceptable residential tax rate. Rice County may need to consider analyzing and developing an optimum goal for maintaining a healthy tax base.
balance in the tax base. It is evident an increase in the commercial/industrial development is necessary in Rice County.

In 2002, the commercial/industrial tax base in Rice County was approximately 16% of the tax capacity but this has increased to roughly 18% in 2017.

“Participants at the community forums stated that the following are ways to take advantage of what we have to enhance the County in the next 20 years: promote businesses off I-35, invest in technology, and keep things local through market research and partnerships.”

Economic development also focuses on those business sectors that provide high quality employment opportunities in the community, bring wealth to the region, and strengthen the tax base of the county. Businesses depend upon a skilled, productive workforce in order to compete successfully. Workforce development enables workers to engage successfully in the changing economy and enables companies to be productive and competitive in a dynamic economic environment.

Job growth in Rice County from 2010 to 2016 shows 2,032 new jobs. The largest employing sector within the County is manufacturing, totaling 17.8% of the jobs. The next two largest employing sectors include educational services and health care/social assistance, which accounts for 29.3% of jobs within the County (DEED Quarterly Census of Employment & Wages).

Economic development programs have just recently been utilized at the county level to encourage expanding businesses or new business development. The Cities of Faribault, Northfield and Lonsdale have established programs as well.

According to the US Census Bureau, Rice County’s per capita income from 2014-2018 was $29,767. This is lower than the Minnesota average of $36,245. The lower incomes are concerning. The median household income for the same time period was $65,758 (US Census Bureau, 2018), in which there was more than one wage earner per household.

Community development focuses on the infrastructure — transportation, telecommunications, workforce housing, utility services — necessary to support competitive businesses and the recreational, cultural and quality of life amenities essential to attracting a broad spectrum of skilled, creative, and productive people.

Over fifty percent of Rice County residents work outside of the County, with the highest number commuting, in order, to Hennepin, Dakota, Steele, Ramsey, and Scott Counties. That being said, just over 9,400 people commute to Rice County for work. Most coming from Dakota County, followed by Steele, Goodhue, Hennepin, and Le Sueur (U.S. Census Bureau, 2014). The County shall seek to expand the opportunities for residents to work closer to where they live. This will require promoting a mix of high quality housing opportunities for households with varying incomes. For more information on Rice County’s education, labor and employment demographics, see the Demographics-Education and Demographics-Labor & Employment documents in the FIG section.

Rice County has a number of assets that can assist in working to build and strengthen a sustainable regional economy. Interstate 35 runs through the center of the County north to south providing easy access throughout the County. The County is also situated between two large metropolitan areas, Minneapolis-St. Paul and Rochester. This provides close proximity to healthcare, shopping, entertainment and other important amenities. Rice County is rich in cultural history and natural landscapes. Lastly, the County maintains its rural character and agricultural heritage which sets it apart from the nearby metropolitan areas.

This section can serve as a model for Rice County, bringing together county resources - community development, economic development and workforce development — to support a healthy, dynamic, sustainable economy.

3.0 Land Use

3.1 Introduction

The use of land and the pattern of development affect everything from the location and expansion of roads and central utilities to the state of agriculture, the provision of emergency services, the protection of natural resources, and the intangible qualities that constitute “rural character.” That is why Land Use is an imperative element in a Comprehensive Plan (The Plan).

The Land Use section of The Plan is intended to provide the framework that will guide County policies, priorities and investments. This section will help guide the County’s actions in the areas of sustainable growth, economic development, active lifestyles, transportation, and agricultural and natural resource protection.

Rice County is located in a transitional area of Minnesota between south-central and southeastern Minnesota. The location has contributed to diverse land uses and development patterns. The County is predominately rural in nature with a total land area of roughly 496 square miles (329,914 acres). In 2000, approximately 59% was comprised of agricultural land; 19% grass, shrub, or wetland; 10% forested; 9% urban; and the remaining 3% was water. For more information on Rice County’s land use, see the Land Map and Land Cover documents in the FIG.

3.2 Goals, Strategies and Action Items

The following goals and strategies are general statements that focus on the land use topics identified through the planning process. Goals are broadly worded, while strategies are actions that can be taken to achieve a goal. The action items are related to the goals and strategies, but are more specific and detailed. Many of the goals for 2040 are the same or similar to those of the 2002 plan, but have been updated to address progress toward the goals and improved understanding of the relationship between land use and natural resources. It should be noted that goals, strategies, and action items are in no particular order of importance.

3.3 Future Land Use Map
Land Use Map Legend Descriptions:

General Development Shoreland – Shoreland around lakes that are classified as General Development. These lakes are categorized as large, deep lakes or lakes of varying sizes and depths with high levels and mixes of existing development. These lakes are extensively used for recreation and are heavily developed around the shore.

Commercial/Industrial – Areas adjacent Interstate 35 that promote employment and generate tax base in Rice County.

Limited Industrial – Commercial/industrial land use to promote employment and generate tax base in Rice County.

Natural Environment Shoreland – Shoreland around lakes that are classified as Natural Environment. These lakes are categorized as small, often shallow lakes with limited capacities for assimilating the impacts of development and recreational use. They often have adjacent lands with substantial constraints for development such as high water tables, exposed bedrock, and soils unsuitable for septic systems.

Recreational Development Shoreland – Shoreland around lakes that are classified as Recreational Development. These lakes are categorized as medium-sized lakes of varying depths and shapes with a variety of landform, soil, and groundwater situations on the lands around them. They often are characterized by moderate levels of recreational use and existing development.

4.0 Transportation

4.1 Introduction

The transportation system in Rice County is the backbone for commerce and assists in establishing development patterns. The system is comprised of roadways, railroads, airports, waterways, transit, technology and trails for pedestrians and non-motorized bikeways. The transportation system is a critical element in the quality of life for county residents. Transportation systems, both highway and multi-modal, must safely, efficiently and effectively allow citizens to travel to work, recreate and conduct their personal lives. Transportation systems must further provide for efficient movement of goods and services to markets to support the county’s economic vitality. Improvements to the transportation systems are necessary to keep up with the changing needs of the citizens and businesses of Rice County.

Rice County will continue to experience demands with limited resources to meet the transportation needs of the county. The significant investment that the county has made in the transportation system requires that this infrastructure be maintained and properly managed to protect these investments. Continued economic development and growth will also create demand for improvements of the existing roadway system such as turn lanes, bypass lanes, intersection improvements and traffic control changes. Other non-automobile modes for people and freight that maximize transportation system efficiently will also need to be explored. It will be important for collaborations and partnerships to be formed in order to carry out future projects and improvements. Financial plans with various funding options will need to be developed for implementing the selected projects and strategies.

To be efficient and fair a transportation system must serve diverse demands. Rice County will not only see an increase in the aging population, but also an even more diverse population in the next 10-20 years. Therefore, Rice County as whole will need to look for alternative forms of transportation utilizing a variety of multi-modal options. It will be critical for economics of various businesses in the county for their workforce to have access to multi-modal forms of transportation.

Not only do employment clusters need to have adequate transportation options for their workforce, ensuring that essential services like grocery stores, medical facilities, schools or government buildings can be reached are important active living and livability considerations.

This transportation chapter is an abridged version of the County’s full Transportation Plan which is a separate and much more detailed plan document. The 2025 Rice County Transportation Plan was adopted in 2006 and can be found in Appendix D. It is highly recommended that the full Transportation Plan be updated in the near future.

4.2 Goals, Strategies, and Action Items

The following goals and strategies are general statements that focus on Rice County’s Transportation Plan. The goals are broadly worded, while strategies are actions that can be taken to achieve the overarching goal. The action items are related to the goals and strategies, but are more specific and detailed. It should be noted that goals, strategies, and action items are in no particular order of importance.

5.0 Housing and Livable Communities Design

5.1 Introduction

A critical component to a healthy and vibrant community is a diverse and balanced housing supply in good physical condition that includes a variety of price levels, housing types, and sizes. A mix of housing tenures, types, and rent and sales prices provides residents with a range of choices so that they can continue living in their community as their housing needs change through their lifetimes. The affordability of housing is especially important for all residents because it provides a stable foundation on which to build one’s life. Affordable housing can also improve health outcomes by freeing up family resources for nutritious food, transportation, and health care expenditures. A diverse housing supply can also better adapt to future environmental, social, and economic changes than one that is largely based on just one of these types. A full range of housing options also enables communities to address the housing needs of employers and a diverse workforce. These qualities define a livable community.

Housing in Rice County has been presented in a housing study that was finalized in August 2018, titled “Comprehensive Housing Study: Rice County and Identified Sub-Markets.” The complete study can be reviewed in Appendix E. The report identifies current and future needs, recommends a housing mix, and the suggested amount and types of housing that could be developed to meet the needs of Rice County for the next five, ten and fifteen years. Major housing issues identified in the County by the study were high cost of housing (third most expensive area for housing in Minnesota, ranked behind Rochester and the Twin Cities) and a gap in ownership by minority residents versus white residents (98 percent of households in Rice County are owned by whites compared to the State in which 75 percent of whites own homes). The data also shows a lack of senior housing and affordable rental housing units. Opportunities for encouraging construction of missing housing options are discussed in the Recommendation section of the report. For more information on Rice County’s housing in addition to the study, see the Household Characteristics and Housing documents in the FIG.

6.0 Parks, Recreation, and Open Space

6.1 Introduction

Parks and open areas are essential spaces that are shared by everyone within a community, this statement also runs true for Rice County. There are currently 13 parks within the Rice County park system totaling over 1,100 acres. These parks don’t only provide a way for residents to achieve a healthy lifestyle by being active, but also by utilizing the benefits of being out in nature. Many of the parks within Rice County offer amenities that visitors can use such as: picnic areas with a shelter, fishing dock, restrooms, hiking trails and playground equipment. Rice County has a handful of open space land as well. Some of those areas include: Rossez Wildlife Area, areas along the Cannon River, conservation lands, Farmed lands, and Forest land. The County also has Wildlife Management Areas (WMAs) and State Scientific and Natural Areas (SNA) that are open for public use. Visitors are encouraged to observe and learn while protecting the natural features, plants, and animals.

Over the years, there have been Parks, Open Space, and Recreation Plans set into place. In 1992, Rice County adopted the first Rice County Park System Plan, which contained policies for existing park infrastructure, and implementation strategies to support the goals of the parks. The framework of the 1992 parks plan not only helped with the direction the county needed to take with parks and open space, but as well as where to go for the future. In 2012, the Parks, Recreation, and Open Space Plan was updated with even more expansive implementation strategies. The 2012 Parks Plan is located in Appendix G.

7.0 Sustainability

7.1 Introduction

Sustainability focuses on meeting the current needs without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their needs. The concept of sustainability is composed of three pillars: economic, environmental and social. Sustainability encourages decisions be framed in terms of environmental, social and human impact for the long-term, rather than on short-term gains.

Rice County’s abundant natural resources contribute to the overall quality of life for all of its residents and visitors. These resources provide many benefits to the County such as economic opportunities, recreational activity options and biological diversity. Sustaining and enhancing these resources will contribute to not only the County’s vibrant economy but will also provide enjoyment for generations to come. While there are areas within Rice County that are attractive for future development it is important that it does not intrude on prosperous agricultural land, protected and preserved natural land and in areas that could cause potential environmental concerns.

The county is already taking steps toward becoming a more sustainable place for residents and visitors to be. For example, Rice County has over 24 completed solar gardens within its boundaries and has quite a few more in the process of being constructed. Rice County also has options for residents at the County solid waste facility to dispose of household hazardous waste, which can be harmful to the environment if not disposed of properly, and as well as a composting site where County residents can dispose of yard waste.

There are also a few cities within Rice County that developed (or are in the process of developing) and are implementing various sustainability practices and plans. For example, the City of Northfield adopted their Climate Action Plan in November of 2019. Their plan’s goal is to go 100% carbon-free by 2040 by decreasing greenhouse gas emissions through mitigation strategies and as well as becoming more resilient to prepare for a changing climate. The City of Faribault started the process of a city-wide Climate Action Plan in the summer of 2020 with the hopes of having it completed and approved for adoption by early 2021.

Looking ahead to 2040, Rice County is looking at ways to become more sustainably friendly in support with the communities within the County. Some options the County’s looking into is preservation and enhancement of natural lands and systems, exploring and expanding energy efficient methods and renewable energy resources, and encouraging the reduction of waste, recycling, reuse, and composting.

7.2 Goals, Strategies and Action Items
